

Saucy Dish with MYSpace TV's ROOMMATES!

Written by Max "Smitty" Schmidt

Max "Smitty" Schmidt here, assistant to a Hollywood Agent to the Stars. For the past 15 years I have been a loyal and trusting Assistant to a major Icon in the entertainment industry. This kind of longevity atop the A-List is amazing and not by accident. I have worked my way up from Occidental Film School to the mailroom and up through the assistant ranks. Just three years ago, I was awarded a most generous 2% raise and a lunch break of 20 minutes. My boss is truly the best, as an ADDITIONAL bonus, he gave me three of his Armani ties last Christmas. The "lucky ties" I call them. They adorned my boss's neckline throughout the eighties, his most prosperous period. Boy Howdy, I think that says something.

But now, I yearn for something of my own. I have booked a representation meeting with the hottest new actresses in town. During my lunch break, I caught the new DAILY 2.5 minute My Space TV Show: ROOMMATES. The premise is dee-lish. Four spunky adorables, each representing a microcosm of society, share a house in Los Angeles searching for Fame and Stardom.

The four personalities are fresh and intoxicating. I have never seen SUCH originality. First there is Violet , the Chihuahua toting fashionista (ole!).

According to her My Space Profile she really loves her Dad, for without him she would have to work before fully exploring her creativity. Talk about marriage material. Last night, mother came into my bedroom to drop off my freshly laundry shorts and caught me reviewing Violet's VLOG. She was smitten as well. When it is time to propose, I will take her to the Hills atop Northridge and proclaim my love. I already know which tie I will wear.

Sigourney Sigourney is my ace in the hole. According to her VLOG she was named after Sigourney Weaver and is dying to become an actress. She would love to join the ranks of my boss's A-List clientele that includes Elke Sommer, Kathy Najimy and Ron Palillo

. She has a tenacious spark and seems to be control freak of the gang, but I like that.
