

It has been tipped off to us by the always accurate (when sober) Dick & Partridge; Hollywood that Oscar Winner Quentin Tarantino was driving his bright yellow Mustang down Cahuenga Blvd in Hollywood last Friday. The street had been temporarily closed off and Tarrantino hastily summoned a cop to allow him to flip a U-tee and sped off in the opposite direction

Here's the problem...the reason the street had been closed was because 1000's of WGA striking WGA members had been marching across the street. The Director tore off in the opposite direction.

With Tarantino having one of the most recognizable mugs in town, it might be good to have him on board. He has been suspiciously absent from the fracas.

Maybe he just considers the strike more of TV thing. Perhaps he is still sulking and doesn't feel like socializing.

Give of yourself QT, it will make you feel better.
