No, not the Yankees, the GOP!

Yes, I remember his heroics in both of the World Series he won.. Not only did he lead the Red Sox to World Series glory but he also took out the Yankees in 2001. I like both of those things.

Do you remember how he spoiled it all on The Today Show?

Just a day or two before the 2004 election, he was talking to satellite on the coffee grinder. He then turns on fellow Massy John Kerry. Kerry has supported the Red Sox his whole life. Kerry really bled with the Red Sox.

“Vote Tomorrow! Vote Bush!” Fake Bostonian meets Fake Texan. Schilling spent his formative years in Arizona and is new to New England in the last five years. Do we need another moron of this caliber in the Senate? Anyone who follows the Bush born again Christian, fear mongering philosophy is nothing but trouble. Chances are even a rookie politician could outtalk this windbag.

Are the New Englanders really ready to give up their Kennedy birthright? Are they ready to trade hope for fear? There have been actors and athletes scattered through the Congress. They have all been marginal at best.

It has taken us years to upset the Evil Yankee stylings of the GOP and now one in Red Fox in sheepskin is trying to Charlie Hustle his way in on his Tommy John.

Boston think. Schilling is a Yankee now. Don't throw away the house you have built.
